yelling with delirious enthusiasm. Such a scene of excitement has seldom been seen on any race track, barring, perhaps, on Suburban and Brooklyn Handicap days.

It was a fierce drive through the stretch, and Dorian seemed to be short of work. J. E. Seagram, owner of Victorious, was standing on the steps in front of the press stand. He turned with a face white as chalk and shouted:

"I didn't have a dollar on him." Bub Aikens, before the race, bet $25c on Dorian against $10, with the remark:
"Fil win a bet, anyhow." The pikers were all down on Victorious, and the books were hard bit.

Lester German has mysteriously disappeared, and the members of the team are at a loss to know what has become of him. He was last seen in Baltimore on Monday afternoon, but he did not accompany the team to Philadelphia. It is thought that he is ill in Baltimore. That the Glants' fourth pitcher is not satisfied in New York is well known, and he has frequently expressed him-self to that effect. He is one of the players who, it is alleged, have been 'knocking" the Club.
